

Testive is using CAT to develop rapid diagnostic tests for students and schools to help direct interventions for test preparation. Our first product is a rapid SAT diagnostic. Our company is small and fast moving. We work in a very flexible work environment. We can work with professionals based anywhere and on almost any time schedule.

Currently, we are looking for a contract item writer to product high-quality questions modeled on the SAT. Our needs are across all sections. Over the long term, we expect to expand to expand our question database as well as include diagnostics modeled on other tests as well as bring on even more expertise in psychometrics.

The ideal candidate will have experience writing model questions and be comfortable working on a contract basis. The exact structure of the compensation will be based on the individual's experience and specific needs.
