The 2017 Annual Meeting of the Psychometric Society will be hosted by the University of Zurich, in Zurich, Switzerland.

The University of Zurich is conveniently located within walking distance of Zurich's beautiful historic city center, with a view of Lake Zurich and the Swiss Alps. Downtown Zurich is walkable and full of historic alleys, boutiques, and exquisite restaurants. The entirety of the city – including the lake and the surrounding mountains – can also be easily explored by train, streetcar, boat, mountain railway, or other means of public transportation.

Zurich offers a unique blend of sightseeing, cultural attractions, and outdoor activities within a thoroughly modern city. It houses traditional fine watchmakers and artisanal chocolatiers as well as modern global players in science and business. In a single day, you can hike through the foothills of the Alps, climb the tower of an 800-year-old church, eat in Europe's oldest vegetarian restaurant, and enjoy a sundowner in an open-air lounge that during the day is a public pool by the riverside.

Zurich can be easily reached by airplane or train from numerous destinations all over the world. Due to its location and historic city center, Zurich is often said to offer "all the best of Europe in one city." It is also the ideal starting point for further exciting travel destinations, such as to the Alps or neighboring countries like Italy or Germany.
